100TH YEAR GETTYSBURG, PA., SATURDAY, MAY 4, 1918 NO. 38

A LETTER FROM FRANCE

MISS WOLF RECEIVES 5TH INSTALLMENT OF FUND.

Says the Boys Are Cheerful and Don't Want to Come Home Until the Job is Well Done.

Your letter and order (the 5th) arrieved to-day, March 14, and did much to rest this weary soul after a strenuous twenty-four hours. I spent all night at the station then at one A. M. a telegram arrived to prepare breakfast for 259 wounded. That's not much, only chocolate, coffee and bread. The train was due at seven A. M., strange to say it arrived at a good half hour in advance. The doctor came in and some one told him I was an American so he said, "Do get on I have nine Americans on board." I could not go at once, but as soon as possible I collected my bag of chocolate and cigarettes and piled on. The cups had not been collected so I thought I had time to see each boy,—but low the train began to move. I did not jump off as I thought it was only moving down the track a bit, instead it was definitely on its way and I had visions of landing at Nantes covered with cinders and chocolate which [illegible] the men had spilled. [illegible] was a huge [illegible] to go the whole way, while I was thinking what a mess I was to land there and return by the express at 1.30. Then I [illegible] by a junction where the train may stop a moment and I can get off. So I told the Frenchman to gather up the cups and be ready and in the mean time I [illegible] and [illegible] how the boys [illegible] and gassed, [illegible] They were glad [illegible] United States [illegible].

At the junction the train slowed down but did not stop,—to the [illegible] ror of the French I opened the door and [illegible] telling the man to throw [illegible] boys who could [illegible] station master [illegible] moon eyes, [illegible] jump off and expecting to collect the fragments which proved no more than a dozen tin cups rolling about my feet. Every man about the place dropped everything and hurried up prepared to render first aid, and such a sputtering, where did I come from and I might have been killed, etc. "I'm not even bruised,—I came from Angers,—and I want to go back on the first thing that goes through here." "No train until eleven, stay right here and we will make you chocolate." "Thank you very much, you are too kind, but I'm dead tired and there comes a freight, ask the engineer to take me aboard anywhere." "Oh but it's too dirty, you could not ride on that." "Look at me do you think I could be worse, my face is smudgy while my clothes are beyond description." The freight stopped, the engineer got down and joined the crowd so I asked him to take me on. He apologized for the dirt, but if I insisted he would gladly take me only the engine was too dirty so he would give me a brakeman's look-out, a little coop up on the corner of a box car. So I shook hands all around and my grinning engineer gave me a boost into the sky parlor and we were off. Every window was broken and bits of sacking nailed across much perforated, so there I roosted for forty minutes. I only had a thin sweater and the morning was cold, but the country with the rising sun over all the fruit trees in bloom was gorgeous. The train finally arrived at the yards, a half mile from the station, and the two Cathedral spires gleaming in the morning sun were never more welcome to a foot sore, weary pilgrim than the Cathedral spires of Angers to this half frozen stupid. My engineer assisted me down with all the grace of an old world beau, regretting very much he could not stop right at the door for me, and how enchanted he was to have the honor, and all the nice things the French know so well how to say.

I marched in with my arms full of cups, amid a wild chorus of exclamations, stating that I had only gone to gather them up, knowing how useful they were. Then I had to be warmed and stuffed with hot tea and toast: in the meantime the Sisters were worried, why had I not come in, and a hot bath was waiting for me. Everyone who telephoned was told I was too tired to be disturbed, the Mother Superior forbade it, etc., but when the Red Cross Chief called up there was no help for it and I was called after an hour and a half rest. I'll tell you more about the boys tomorrow, sufficient to say the chocolate and cigarettes were joyfully received.

The Sisters spoil me terribly, they won't hear of my getting up for breakfast, as so very many times I get to bed so late on account of my work at the station. Every morning a little Sister comes up with my breakfast and I can eat it or not just as I feel. They have given up trying to make me drink chocolate or milk. The present day coffee is too awful, mostly chicory. At first I missed coffee terribly, now I never think of it, and I wonder if I would appreciate good coffee if I ever get another cup.

None of the boys were in bad shape except the two gas cases. They were weak as rags with grating voices and bad coughs. Gas gives a voice like a hard drinker,s, husky and grating because the lungs and throat are full of blisters. It is a devilish invention for many of those who survive develop some other trouble as the lungs are in perfect condition to take in any stray bug, and there are thousands of stray bugs everywhere. The latest gas is such an evil thing for it does not show effects until days after, so they do not know they have been gassed in time to take precautions. These boys felt languid and tired some time before it was known they had been gassed. One said it was such hard work to do anything and he wondered if he had spring fever. He had a distance to go for food and felt he would rather do without it than walk that far. One day he had to go a mile and when he got back he was all in and fell down and then it was hard to breathe. He was taken to the French doctor who said he had been gassed and to the hospital where he said he was sprayed and treated like a prince. All were delighted with the treatment in the French hospitals and were quite willing to stay. The French are so good and as long as it is only a slight wound all goes well. But for the badly wounded men there is no place equal to an English or American hospital with real trained nurses and doctors who realize the full importance of fresh air, cleanliness and frequent changing of dressings. Well I've wandered off from the boys: they were all from the 101st and 103d New England Regiments. Those last week from the same regiments were all wounded near the Chemin des Dames and they all tell the same [illegible] in the trenches, just the sort of [illegible] heard since 1914. How they [illegible] there like rabbits, each side [illegible] at the other all the time [illegible] a stray shot [illegible] making night [illegible] "Hello" But the boys [illegible] full of jokes, [illegible] until the job [illegible] done. Those who could move about were trying to [illegible] with the French. [illegible] French orderly was [illegible] as Punch of them and [illegible] detailed account of all they had done since [illegible] on the train. [illegible] are always [illegible] and brushing their teeth, [illegible] their hair three times a day! Only one had cigarettes and the others [illegible] without so the French could have them,—and all little items like that he told me. I told the boys that I had a detailed history of their behavior for the past two days and they immediately shared their chocolate and cigarettes with the others. The two gassed cases requested their shares be given to two sick men in the next compartment. I'm always glad to see the boys try to mix with the French, so many won't be bothered at first because they can't speak. It is a plague I know, but the best results will be obtained by mixing and learning the French character. There is too much spirit of criticism and feeling and we can teach the French how to do everything.

Five hundred Western boys went through this afternoon and about a thousand arrived in town this evening. I piloted an English cavalryman this evening who came as an instructor in athletics,—there will be two at the barracks. We are becoming quite Amreican even to an ice cream parlor which is the joy of the boys. It's not good American ice cream but all think it better than none. Even now the book shops ask me what sort of stock they shall get to please my Compatriots.

I hope to be in my new bird cage within the next two weeks, it has been so long in building, but it will be very grand. I spent the evening deciding on decorations, colors for walls and woodwork, bought a kitchen stove, etc. Some day I'll send you a picture when we are fully installed. Even ordered washlines put up for airing blankets, etc. We will have four flags to take down each evening, and to-day Douval and I decided we would have a record of the "Star Spangled Banner." One evening he will be the color squad to stand to attention while I lower the flags,—next evening we change off. General Pershing and Secretary Baker went through to-day but did not stop.

Thank all the people for me. I appreciate all they do more than I can say for it gives the boys real pleasure to know home folks remember them. And some day when we all come marching home with flying colors and brass bands I'll be glad to tell them personally how splendid they have been.

LIBERTY LOAN OVER THE TOP

RACE ON NOW FOR PLACE ON HONOR ROLL AND BLUE STARS.

Big Parade on Saturday to Celebrate —Special Exercises in the Square.

Adams County went over the top in the Third Liberty Loan Drive on Thursday, May 2nd, the close of that day sees the county ten thousand dollars over the quota of $1,069,530. But that did not end the drive, the momentum was on, there were races in many districts for something more than simply over the top. To be at the Hun and give him hell meant to get on the honor roll, a place not alone won by the amount of money subscribed, but by the number subscribing, and to be on the Honor Roll required ten per cent of the inhabitants to be purchasers of bonds. There was still another goal, the Blue Star districts, communities that doubled their quota of money and subscribers.

When the county went over the top on Thursday four districts had won the Blue Star distinction:

Bendersville
Fairfield
Littlestown
York Springs.

Fifteen of the districts had placed themselves on the Honor Roll:

Arendtsville
Abbottstown
Biglerville
East Berlin
Germany Township
Gettysburg 1st Ward
Gettysburg 2d Ward
Highland No. 2
McSherrystown 1st Ward
Mt. Joy Township South-east
Mt. Joy Township North-west

Two districts were over the top with money but not number of inhabitants:

Franklin Township
Cumberland Township

Cashtown was in a special race class of its own, while part of Franklin township, one-fifth of the 205 residents of that town had subscribed for $5,250 of bonds.

The wonderful demonstration this Third Liberty Loan has given is that the hearts of our people are with the country to win the war, that Adams county is going with the country to the last ditch and trench to win and then some. This demonstration shows what thorough organization will do and it has brought out in the lime light men in every district who are willing to go their limit to put over their country's cause. Adams county has the boys to sell the bonds as long as there are loans to be created until the Huns are cleaned up for good.

Going over the top with the Third Liberty Loan is an event well worth the celebration and Gettysburg with the help of the whole county is simply going to have a blow-out on Saturday afternoon. Everybody will be in town so come along. All stores will be closed during the parade. The big county flag is already here to be sent to the top of the pole in the Square. The parade will be at 3 o'clock and will be made up as follows:

Chief Marshal, Major F. L. Graham and Aides.
Dr. W. A. Granville and Henry L. Rosenfeld, the Orator of the Day.
Gettysburg College Band.
Gettysburg College Battalion.
Littlestown Band.
Battalion from Camp Colt.
Gettysburg Band.
Deer Hunters of Adams County.
Patriotic Organizations.
Veteran Drum Corps.
High School Pageant.
Uncle Sam, Miss Columbia, and Attendants.
Biglerville Band.
Public and Parochial Schools.
Bendersville Band.
Red Cross in Uniform.
New Oxford Drum Corps.
Gettysburg Fire Department.
Food Administration Section.

The usual route covering the main streets will be followed, ending in the Square, where there will be speeches.

Henry L. Rosenfeld, vice president of the Equitable Life Assurance Company of New York, and in Germany previous to the war, will be the principal speaker.

CORPORAL KENNETH STECK.

Son of Dr. and Mrs. A. R. Steck, of Carlisle Dies in Camp.

The many friends of Dr. and Mrs. A. R. Steck in this place were shocked to learn the sad news last Friday of the death of their son Kenneth Steck, at Camp McClellan, Anniston, Ala., where he was a soldier in the U. S. A., being attached to the 104th Engineer Corps. He was Headquarters Corporal and prior to the illness was in most excellent health writing home to this effect to his mother. The young man had attended Dickinson College. He left Carlisle in 1916 and was employed in Camden, N. J., where he enlisted with the New Jersey troops. Then he came home on a brief visit and soon after his return was taken with the troops to Camp McClellan, Anniston, Ala. Starting April 15 his Corps took a week's hike. On Monday of last week his parents received a telegram from the camp surgeon stating that Kenneth was ill in the base hospital with lobor pneumonia, that his recovery was expected and that a letter would follow. The letter followed but gave comparatively little detailed information concerning the young man's illness excepting to say that he was receiving the best attention possible and that skilled physicians were doing all in their power for him. Thursday afternoon a telegram was received announced his death.

Corporal Kenneth Steck was born 25 years ago at Indianapolis, Ind., where his father was pastor of the First Lutheran Church. He was a young man of fine qualities, of genial disposition, and a loving and dutiful son. He was a member of the First Lutheran Church and Sunday School of Carlisle. Both in college circles and in Carlisle he was popular among a large circle of friends. It was in the days of his young boyhood he lived in Gettysburg while his father was pastor of St. James Lutheran Church.

Kenneth Steck gave his life for his country just as truly and as bravely and as patriotically as though he had been the victim of a Hun bullet.

In addition to his parents he is survived by the following brothers and sisters: Malcolm, Richard, Roger Charles, Katherine and Margaret, all at home.

The body of the young soldier was taken to the First Lutheran Church, Carlisle, on Tuesday, where hundreds of persons viewed it. The funeral services at 4.30 o'clock were in charge of Rev. Dr. H. B. Stock, pastor of St. Paul's Lutheran Church, assisted by several Carlisle pastors. The members of the Grand Army of the Republic attended the funeral in a body and the Carlisle Indian School Band played solemn dirges on the way to the cemetery and acted as the firing squad at the grave. Six soldiers acted as pallbearers, some of whom were his comrades and accompanied the body home.

CLEAN-UP! CLEAN-UP!

Gather Up the Rubbish—May 6 to 11 Is Clean-up Week.

The State Department of Health in a single mail received twenty-five letters from as many different sections of the Commonwealth announcing enthusiastic co-operation in plans for "Clean-up Week," May 6th to 11th. The Acting Commissioner of Health states that large manufacturing concerns, railway managers, councilmanic bodies, boards of health, boards of trade, civic clubs, and charitable organizations are joining in the movement and a number of interesting placards and circulars have already been received. Clean-up! Clean-up! Clean-up! garret, cellar, grounds, alleys and streets is to be the slogan.

The American Civic Association through its President, Mr. J. Horace McFarland, has suggested that many communities might well combine with their clean-up program a salvage program and that the earnings from the salvage should be devoted to the Red Cross or other war charity. Tin foil, brass, lead, copper, iron, old rubber shoes and boots, automobile tires and inner tubes, discarded newspapers and magazines, bottles, cold cream jars, and in some communities burlap and gunny sacking, white rags and separated mixed rags are the things most likely to be found. Wasteful Americans have paid little heed to the values in cast off material of this sort. Some communities have salvaged many things in rummage sales, but during "Clean-up Week" thousands of additional dollars worth of material may be salvaged. The cost of the clean-up may thus be met, or better still the salvage monies may be made to serve public charities organized for our boys now fighting in France.

Back to the Penitentiary.

Oliver Miller was sentenced by the Court on last Saturday morning to not less than fifteen months nor more than three years in the Eastern Penitentiary, on the charges of which he was found guilty by a jury earlier in the week. The verdict of guilty of assault and battery and in the aggravated form upon Samuel Hartzell met the approval of the Court, the latter declaring the attack was unprovoked and unwarranted, and its vicious character was such that some severe punishment was necessary. The ungovernable temper of the prisoner made him more or less a menace to the community and called for the punishment meted out.

William Byrd, who plead guilty to theft of a number of articles of baggage at the Reading Station was sent to Glen Mills. The father indicated that the boy was beyond his control.

H. M. S. Staley, in jail since March 20th, was given his freedom on condition he leave the county. He told of tramping through the country and on his way through Fairfield was arrested.

Four young boys, John Hoffman, Thomas Myrick, James Hoffman and Paul Steinour were charged with breaking into the foundry of Calvin Gilbert in the day time and were directed by the Court to report monthly to the District Attorney, and as each might earn the money in the next six months to pay $1.50 to cover the value of the articles taken.

The case against William Tonsil was nol prossed for want of sufficient evidence.

The passing of sentence was continued in the case of the Commonwealth against Tom H. Amprazes who pleaded nolle contendere to a charge of maintaining a bawdy house.

ALLIES DEMAND MORE CEREALS

American Meat Restrictions Relaxed to Effect Greater Wheat Savings.

ARGENTINE ARRIVALS SHORT.

Meat Supply Here Considerably Enlarged — Food Administration, However, Warns Against Waste.

The allies have made further and increased demands for breadstuffs, these enlarged demands being caused to some degree by shortage in arrivals from the Argentine. It is, therefore, necessary for the U. S. Food Administration to urge a still further reduction in the consumption of bread and breadstuffs generally if we are to meet our export necessities. The Food Administration has issued a statement explaining the situation in detail, particularly the reasons which lead it, for the purpose of centering effort for the time being upon the cereal situation to relax temporarily the restrictions on meat consumption.

Experience shows, this statement says, that the consumption of breadstuffs is intimately associated with the consumption of meat. For various reasons our supplies of meat for the next two or three months are considerably enlarged, and we can supply the allies with all of the meat products which transportation facilities render possible and at the same time somewhat increase our own consumption. In these circumstances the Food Administration considers it wise to relax the voluntary restrictions on meat consumption to some extent with a view to further decreasing bread consumption.

Conservation of food must be adjusted to meet necessities from time to time, for neither production, nor allied demands are constant factors, nor can any of these factors be anticipated for long periods in advance in the disturbed conditions in which we at present live. While the world situation is not one that warrants any relaxation in the efforts to eliminate waste or to relax economy in food, the Administration desires to secure better adjustment in food balances.

So long as the present conditions continue the only special restrictions we ask are the beefless and porkless Tuesday.

The meatless meal and the porkless Saturday are no longer asked.

The farmers of the United States are responding to the national call to increase hog production. Their increase, to all appearances, is being attained more rapidly. Of more immediate importance, however, are several complex factors which have effected an immediate increase in meat supplies.

The transportation shortage before the government took over the railroads, the bad weather in January and early in February, the large percentage of immature corn in the last harvest and the necessity of feeding this corn as rapidly as possible to save it from decay, have not only resulted in backing up the animals—particularly hogs—on the farms for a longer period of feeding, but have resulted in a great increase in their average weight and will result, with improved transportation conditions, which already appear, in larger than normal arrivals at market for the next two or three months. The weight of hogs coming to the market for the past two weeks indicates an increase in weight of from an average of 203 pounds last year to the almost unprecedented average of 232 pounds, or a net increase in their meat value of over 15 per cent. This is a distinct addition to the nation's meat supply. It therefore now seems certain that we have such enlarged supplies for at least some months to come, that we can not only increase our exports to the allies to the full extent of their transportation facilities, but at the same time can properly increase our domestic consumption.

The response of the public to our requests for reduced consumption of meat during the past few months has been most gratifying, and this service alone has enabled the government during this period to provide such supplies as transportation to the allies permitted.

The Administration also suggests that in those parts of the country where the old fashioned home preservation of pork is still the custom, this practice should be extended at the present time, as it will relieve the burden upon transportation to and from the packing houses and is economically sound as saving the cost of packing operations and at the same time will provide home supplies of pork to last over the months of decreased supplies.

The Food Administration desires to repeat that it does not want to give the impression that these are times when simplicity and moderation of living are not critically necessary, but that its sole desire is to secure an adjustment between our different food supplies and meet changing conditions from time to time and to keep the public fully and frankly advised of its position with the full confidence and reliance that whenever it becomes necessary renewed appeals for saving will meet the same loyal response as in the past.

Hoffman Orphanage Annual Report.

The Board of Directors of the Hoffman Orphange held a meeting at Littlestown, Thursday of last week, at which the annual financial report was submitted.

The Christmas offering of the Reformed Church for the support of the Hoffman Orphange, near Littlestown, amounted to $5,787.40, according to the report made by the treasurer, the Rev. Samuel H. Stein, of York, at a meeting of the board of directors. The sale of farm products for the last six months amounted to $1,643.19. The receipts from personal gifts were $1,073.

The board authorized the erection of a silo and other minor improvements to the property. It was also decided to equip the playground for children and to challenge the Sunday School to each make an offering of $5 or more for the purpose in order that the work may be speedily completed. Plans were formulated for the holding of the anniversary exercises at the orphanage on Thursday, August 29.

The superintendent, the Rev. Andrew H. Smith, announced his intention to visit all the meetings of the classis during the coming month to tell of the orphanage work and ask a large support in behalf of the church.

The children, about forty in number, are in good health, and taking their final examinations for the year. The school term ends the last of this month. The property is in fine shape and the crops promise an abundant harvest.

County Pastor Called to City.

Rev. Walter E. Garret, for the past four years pastor of the New Oxford Reformed charge, composed of the churches at New Oxford and Abbottstown, has been elected pastor of the First Reformed Church, 50th and Locust streets, Philadelphia. This is one of the Colonial churches of the Quaker City, having been organized in 1727. Rev. Mr. Garrett has not as yet accepted the call but in all probability will do so.

Editor In Retirement.

A Georgian editor, who retired some years ago, has recently been reviewing that part of his career which has been free from the labors of the newspaper office.

He finds, in contrasting it with a period of similar length prior to his abandonment of the lead pencil and the shears, that the change has been great, indeed. Residing in his own comfortable, if humble, home, nothing has been asked of him while taking his well-earned rest except to chop and bring in all the firewood, supply the house with water from the spring, start the kitchen fire every morning, feed the hogs, the chickens, and the cows; milk and churn, plant and weed the garden, and attend to miscellaneous chores.

It is worth while, he evidently thinks, to work hard as an editor for a few years in order to enjoy the luxury of retirement later on.—Christian Science Monitor.

Warm Air for Flyers.

To protect military airmen from the intense cold of the upper atmosphere and also avoid the burden of cumbersome, heavy garments, an airheated one-piece costume has been designed, says the Popular Mechanics Magazine. The suit is made of two layers of material and supplied with a system of air conduits extending to its various extremities. Air, taken in through a funnel mounted behind the propellor and warmed by passage through a coil encircling the motor's exhaust pipe, is carried into the main artery of the suit by a flexible tubing connected at the rear. The heat circulates into the gloves and shoes worn by the airman and rises around his body, while cool air passes out through valves.

Adams Co. on Another Honor Roll.

The Department of Health, of Pennsylvania, has just completed a tabulation of the number of its officers who have been commissioned in the Medical Officers' Reserve Corps, together with a list of those who have entered the various branches of the Federal Service since the United States entered the present world-wide war. The record is one of which Pennsylvania has every reason to be proud.

With Pennsylvania for more than a hundred years leading all other States in medical education and for twelve years under the leadership of Dr. Samuel G. Dixon, far in advance in public health and sanitary work, it might have been expected in a great National crisis that Pennsylvania with many men well trained in public health work would stand first in response to the Surgeon General's call for medical men.

The honor roll from the State Department of Health begins with seven medical officers who have been commissioned as Majors, twenty-eight Medical Officers and eight sanitary engineers who have been commissioned as Captains, one hundred and sixty-eight medical officers, two sanitary engineers and one health officer as First Lieutenants, five State officers to various special branches of the service, and thirteen nurses to the Nursing Corps of the Army. In addition to two hundred thirty-two persons entering the army two sanitary engineers have entered the Federal Public Health Service doing cantonment work and two stenographers have accepted Federal positions for war work.

It is doubtful if any State organization in America could have sent to the Federal Army in this great crisis any such number persons trained to serve as officers.

Dr. Royer, the Acting Commissioner, was commissioned a Lieutenant in 1911, a Captain in April 1917, and in addition to his public health duties, has served as Chairman of the Examining Board at Harrisburg In this capacity he has passed upon the professional and physical qualifications of those entering the Medical and Sanitary Officers' Reserve Corps, and on the physical qualifications of those entering the Veterinary Officers' and the Dental Officers' Reserve Corps.

The Medical Committee of the Council of Defense reports that Pennsylvania leads all other States in the number of Medical officers entering the Army. This is as it ought to be and Pennsylvania stands ready to keep on giving to this branch of the service, giving until it hurts, so long as this world-wide war continues.

Adams county, first on the list, is represented by three first lieutenants, Dr. J. McCrea Dickson, of Gettysburg, Chester Bell, of Hunterstown, and Dr. W. R. Snyder, of New Oxford.

ARENDTSVILLE.

The sale of Liberty Bonds in this place has gone over the top to the extent of 50 per cent. above the quota.

Last Sunday evening we had a thunder gust acompanied with a heavy downpour of hail that cut down many fruit blossoms.

Owing to the scarcity and high price of horses our farmers are buying farm traction engines. Geo. E. Hoffman has sold five recently.

Arnold Raffensperger and Leslie Orner, two of our soldier boys who are stationed at Camp Meade, Md., spent Saturday and Sunday in the homes of their parents, Mr. and Mrs H. S. Raffensperger and Mr. and Mrs Simon S. Orner.

Geo. March has purchased a new automobile from C. G. Taylor.

Robert E. Spangler, of near Gettysburg, was a recent visitor in the home of his sister, Mrs. Laura Deardorff.

Rev. D. T. Koser will hold communion services at Flohr's Church May 5, and at Arendtsville Lutheran May 12. P.

Clean-up Week.

It is proposed to inaugurate a State-wide clean-up during the week of May 6th to May 11th inclusive. It is proposed to correct the many insanitary conditions responsible for an appalling infant mortality, the stunting and crippling of growing children, and those conditions leading to industrial inefficiency due to insanitary evils.

BRINGS HOME GRIM REALITY

Soldiers Seldom Visualize Death Until They Have Had Their Training With the Bayonet.

Comparatively few of the men in the training camps have sensed the seriousness of their job from books, writes Joseph H. Odell, in the Outlook. Nor did it come to many of them from the formal drills, the setting-up exercises, or the acquisition of military terms and habits. The reality—the grim but thrilling reality—of their business came from the bayonet.

Men can stand at attention without paying attention; they can form columns of fours automatically; they can salute as a matter of easily acquired habit; they can learn the bugle calls by subconscious absorption; but no man can wield the bayonet without visualizing death. The first and chief duty of the bayonet instructor is to make men visualize death—their own or their foe's. "You must get him before he gets you: it's him or you, him or you, him or you!"

Then the ghastly seriousness of the business comes over the recruit; the dreadful alternative flashes along every nerve, and commands the muscles of the eyes, the legs, and the arms as they have never been commanded before. It searches his soul and marks him as a coward or a man; it puts deep lines on his face and galvanizes his will; it changes him almost instantaneously from a civilian to a soldier.

AFLAME WITH VIVID COLOR

Section of Northern Montana Brilliant Scene During the Short Months of Summer.

The Blackfeet, or Piegans, as they call themselves, number approximately 2,700. The setting for this picturesque tribe is a wonderful country, without a glimpse of which no picture of the Blackfeet would be complete, Elsie E. Newton writes in the Southern Workman. The reservation is in northern Montana; in area it is about two-thirds the size of Connecticut. It lies up next to Canada on the north and Glacier park on the west. The park was once a part of it, and retains many Indian names, such as Going-to-the-Sun mountain, Rising-Wolf mountain, Two Medicine lake and river, and others.

From the splendid white-topped range on the west the country drops to rolling prairie eastward. It is a region of bitter winds and storms for several months in the year. Closer to the mountains, there is not a month when frost is unexpected, and snow falls as late as June. But as soon as the last flake has disappeared the hillsides flame almost overnight with wild flowers. The splendor of them continues throughout the short summer, one brilliant shade succeeding another. Half acres in purple, spots of blue, streaks of yellow—one sees this sort of color effect week after week.

Women in the Field of Labor.

If by chance a woman does not become a homemaker, but enters a business pursuit, she meets unusual difficulty. The man has been in business for generations; the woman is a newcomer. Some employments are closed to her, either because they require the great physical strength or endurance, or because conventional considerations forbid. Americans look with disapproval upon women working in the fields, as they do in foreign countries; and yet there is much field work that is more interesting, more wholesome and much more suitable than some of the work that American women are allowed to do—such, for example, as they do in laundries and in factories.

Not only are women considered as invaders in men's fields, but also they suffer because men, invading fields once considered strictly feminine, are becoming dressmakers, cooks, laundry managers and clerks. Moreover, for the same work women received lower pay than men. Do not those difficulties constitute a compelling appeal to give women in their schooling every possible equipment for success?—Youth's Companion.

IMPORTANT USE FOR CAMERA

The adventures of the camera men in this war are more thrilling than any romance. Braving the fire of batteries of anti-aircraft guns and hourly encountering the skillful air duellists, they must calmly choose their positions, risk their lives often for a single exposure, and carry back their pictures in record time. Successful photographs have been made at a height of more than three miles, says Boys' Life, the boy scouts' magazine, for February. From such an altitude the earth appears flat, all objects being lost in a dull cloud-like effect, but the cameras used are of the tele-photo type, which will pierce through this distance. Some are made with a pistol grip which enables the aviator to aim his camera quickly. Other aero cameras are built into the floor or side of the aircraft and pictures are taken by touching a button with the foot. An improved [illegible] has been [illegible] pictures at the rate of two a second, so that [illegible]

Aerial photography has many important uses in modern warfare. The camera makes a record of every daring adventure over unexplored regions. It has been estimated that an aero photographer could cover more territory in a day in the Arctic region than could be traversed in a month by dog sledges.

POET MADE WAR HIS THEME

Washington Audience Somewhat Surprised That Masefield Couldn't Spout His Own Verse.

The visit of John Masefield, poet and soldier, to Washington recently attracted the attention of scores of people who have known him through his tales of the sea and other stories in verse form.

The auditorium was packed by the hundreds who came to see what a real, live poet looked like. The national capital, in 1918, may claim its full share of sophistication in matters political, but the visit of a poet is another thing.

Several years ago Alfred Noyes, fellow Englishman of Masefield, spoke there, and people were delighted to find him a simple, frank, good-natured fellow who had all the earmarks of a successful young business man.

So this time they wondered what Masefield would be like. Would he spout yards and yards of poetry from memory? He was scheduled to read his poems.

Masefield talked about the war.

He had been through it, and talked from personal experience. He said scarcely a word concerning his poems.

At the conclusion of his talk some one insisted that he give them several of his poems.

"I'll have to have a copy," he said, simply.

Finally, after much search through the audience, one lone copy of the book needed was found.

Germans Practically Slaves.

A confession made by a German agent when being sentenced in Norway for espionage casts a vivid light upon various happenings in this and other countries since the war began. One Lawen, who had been convicted in the Norwegian courts, said:

"Every time a German abroad is requested by a German official or person in authority to carry out an action the man in question is compelled to obey, no matter what the nature of the action."

Tables Turned.

"You used to scold your boy Josh a great deal."

"Yes," replied Farmer Corntossel. "But he's even for any uneasiness we gave him. All we think about now is runnin' the farm and investin' money in war bonds in a way he'll approve of when he gets home."

GET TO THE CAUSE.

Gettysburg People Are Learning the Way.

There is but little peace or comfort for the man or woman with a bad back. The distress begins in early morning—keeps up throughout the day. It's hard to get out of bed, it's torture to stoop or straighten. Plasters and liniments may relieve, but cannot cure if the cause is inside—the kidneys. When suffering so, use Doan's Kidney Pills, the tested and proven kidney remedy, used in kidney troubles for over 50 years. Doan's Kidney Pills are recommended by thousands for just such cases. Proof of their effectiveness in the testimony of this Gettysburg resident:

W. N. Flaharty, retired farmer, 315 S. Washington St., says: "Doan's Kidney Pills have been of great benefit to me and I gladly recommend them. I was injured some years ago and this affected my kidneys. I used various remedies, but nothing seemed to do me any good until I used Doan's Kidney Pills. Doan's quickly cured me. Wherever I have taken them since, they have done good work."

Mr. Flaharty is only one of many Gettysburg people who have gratefully endorsed Doan's Kidney Pills. If your back aches—if your kidneys bother you, don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—ask distinctly for DOAN'S KIDNEY PILLS, the same that Mr. Flaharty had—the remedy backed by home testimony. 60 cents at all stores. U. S. Must Cut Use Of Wheat by One-Half

America Consumed 42,000,000 Bushels Monthly. From Now Until Harvest Must Use Only 21,000,000.

RATION PER PERSON IS 1½ POUNDS OF WHEAT PRODUCTS WEEKLY

Military Necessity Calls for Greater Sacrifice Here—Allied War Bread Must Be Maintained—Our Soldiers and Sailors to Have Full Allowance.

If we are to furnish the Allies with the necessary proportion of wheat to maintain their war bread from now until the next harvest, and this is a military necessity, we must reduce our monthly consumption to 21,000,000 bushels a month, as against our normal consumption of about 42,000,000 bushels, or 50 per cent. of our normal consumption. This is the situation as set forth by the U. S. Food Administration at Washington. Reserving a margin for distribution to the army and for special cases, leaves for general consumption approximately 1½ pounds of wheat products weekly per person. The Food Administration's statement continues: Many of our consumers are dependent upon bakers' bread. Such bread must be durable and therefore, requires a larger proportion of wheat products than cereal breads baked in the household. Our army and navy require a full allowance. The well-to-do in our population can make greater sacrifices in the consumption of wheat products than can the poor. In addition, our population in the agricultural districts, where the other cereals are abundant, are more skilled in the preparation of breads from these other cereals than the crowded city and industrial populations.

With improved transportation conditions we now have available a surplus of potatoes. We also have in the spring months a surplus of milk, and we have ample corn and oats for human consumption. The drain on rye and barley, as substitutes, has already greatly exhausted the supply of these grains.

To effect the needed saving of wheat we are wholly dependent upon the voluntary assistance of the American people and we ask that the following rules shall be observed:

1. Householders to use not to exceed a total of 1½ pounds per week of wheat products per person. This means not more than 1½ pounds of Victory bread containing the required percentage of substitutes and one-half pound of cooking flour, macaroni, crackers, pastry, pies, cakes, wheat breakfast cereals, all combined.

2. Public eating places and clubs to observe two wheatless days per week, Monday and Wednesday, as at present. In addition thereto, not to serve to any one guest at any one meal an aggregate of breadstuffs, macaroni, crackers, pastry, pies, cakes, wheat breakfast cereals, containing a total of more than two ounces of wheat flour. No wheat products to be served unless specially ordered. Public eating establishments not to buy more than six pounds of wheat products for each ninety meals served, thus conforming with the limitations requested of the householders.

3. Retailers to sell not more than one-eighth of a barrel of flour to any town customer at any one time and not more than one-quarter of a barrel to any country customer at any one time, and in no case to sell wheat products without the sale of an equal weight of other cereals.

4. We ask the bakers and grocers to reduce the volume of Victory bread sold, by delivery of the three-quarter pound loaf where one pound was sold before, and corresponding proportions in other weights. We also ask bakers not to increase the amount of their wheat flour purchases beyond 70 per cent. of the average monthly amount purchased in the four months prior to March 1.

5. Manufacturers using wheat products for non-food purposes shall cease such use entirely.

6. There is no limit upon the use of other cereals, flours, and meals, corn, barley, buckwheat, potato flour, et cetera.

Many thousand families throughout the land are now using no wheat products whatever, except a very small amount for cooking purposes, and are doing so in perfect health and satisfaction. There is no reason why all of the American people who are able to cook in their own households cannot subsist perfectly well with the use of less wheat products than one and one-half pounds a week, and we specially ask the well-to-do households in the country to follow this additional programme in order that we may provide the necessary marginal supplies for those parts of the community less able to adapt themselves to so large a proportion of substitutes.

In order that we shall be able to make the wheat exports that are absolutely demanded of us to maintain the civil population and soldiers of the allies and our own army, we propose to supplement the voluntary co-operation of the public by a further limitation of distribution, and we shall place at once restrictions on distribution which will be adjusted from time to time to secure as nearly equitable distribution as possible. With the arrival of harvest we should be able to relax such restrictions. Until then we ask for the necessary patience, sacrifice and co-operation of the distributing trades.

Great Wheat Stocks Isolated.

It's the shortage in ships that is putting the Allies and the United States on wheat rations. Great stocks of wheat are isolated in India, and Australia. At great sacrifice in ship space and use the Allies are forced to secure some wheat from Argentina.

On January 1, Australia had stored 100,000,000 bushels of wheat that was ready for export—but there were no ships. Then came the new crop with an exportable surplus of 80,000,000 bushels. Now Australia has approximately 180,000,000 bushels waiting for ships.

India, at the same time, had 70,000,000 bushels of wheat stored for export. During April 50,000,000 bushels more out of the new crop will be added to the pile.

Argentina closed the last shipping season with 11,000,000 bushels of wheat left in the stock available for export. The new crop will add 135,000,000 to the left over.

It is not a problem that the wheat does not exist in the world—it is entirely a problem of shipping, which has thrown on America the obligation of dividing our stock with the Allies.

ALLIED FOOD SHIPMENTS REACH LARGE TOTAL

A general idea of the quantity of food sent to European allies by the United States from July 1, 1914, to January 1, 1918, is given by figures just announced by the U. S. Food Administration. In that period the United States has furnished complete yearly rations for 57,100,933 people. In addition there was enough extra protein to supply this portion of the diet for 22,191,579 additional men.

The total export of wheat and wheat flour to the three principal allies is equivalent to about 384,000,000 bushels. Pork exports for the 3½ years amounted to almost 2,000,000,000 pounds. Exports of fresh beef totaled 443,184,100 pounds. The amount of food exported to Russia is negligible compared with that sent to the western allies.

★ ONLY AMERICA CAN HELP. ★

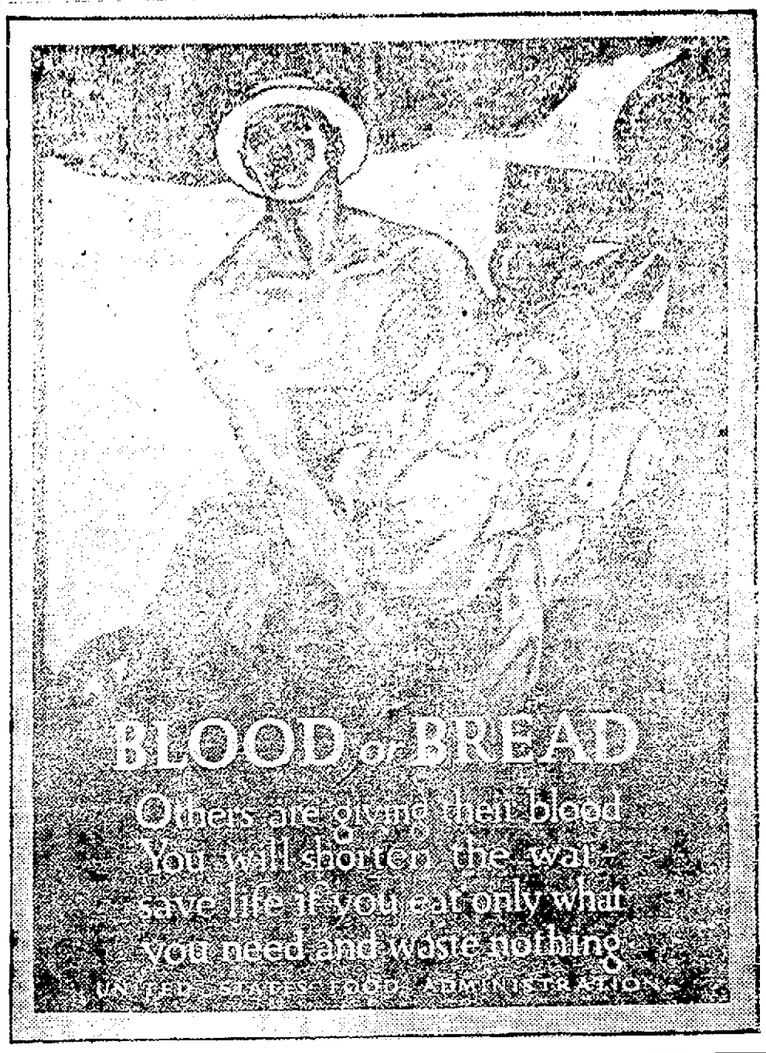

"On your side are boundless supplies of men, food, and material; on this side a boundless demand for their help.

"Our men are war-weary and their nerves have been strained by more than three years of hard, relentless toil.

"Our position is critical, particularly until the next harvest, but the United States can save us.

"You Americans have the men, the skill, and the material to save the allied cause."

SIR JOSEPH MACLAY,
British Shipping Controller.

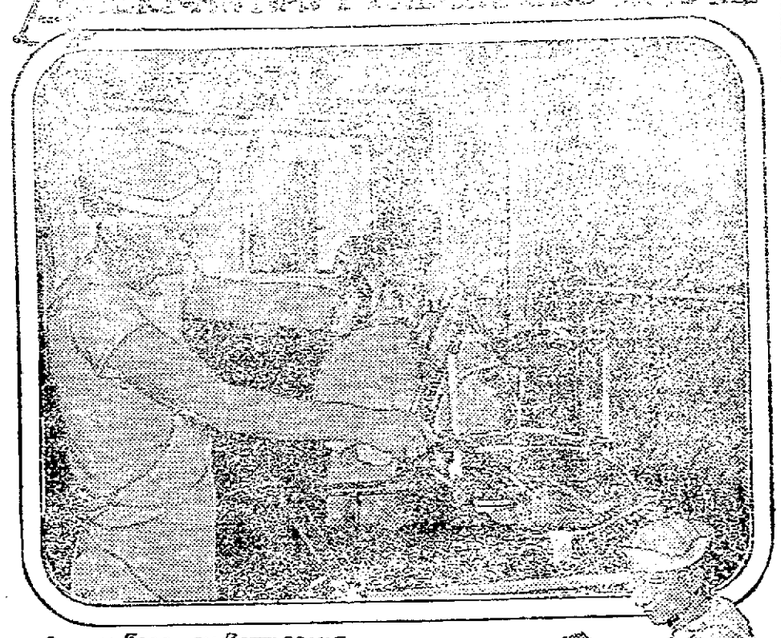

EVERYONE MUST HELP.

Wars cannot be fought without money, and upon the Treasury centers every financial demand upon the Nation.

The rich of this country cannot alone meet the needs of the Nation; the men of the country cannot do it alone; the women of the country cannot do it alone; but all of us, the people of the United States, disregarding partizanship, forgetting selfish interests, thinking only of the supremacy of right and determining to vindicate the majesty of American ideals and secure the safety of America and civilization, can do the great and splendid work which God has called upon us to do.

W. G. McADOO,
Secretary of the Treasury.

SLICING BACON ON BATTLESHIP

JACKIES in the American navy are classed as the best fed body of men in the world. In the ship's galleys every effort is made to eliminate waste.

In the upper photo one of the cooks on the North Dakota is operating a meat slicer that cuts bacon with the least possible wastage. Fat is fuel for fighters. Bacon is badly needed in the allied armies and navies. The allied needs in pork products are 150,000,000 pounds monthly, three times as much as before the war.

Another waste eliminator on the North Dakota is the potato peeler, shown in the lower photo. Nothing is lost except the actual potato skin.

There is a sufficient quantity of potatoes in America for greater use in every home and for all needs of army and navy. Eat more potatoes, eat less wheat.

HELP INCREASE OUR EXPORT FOOD STOCKS

IN CITY and country more war gardens are needed this year than ever before. Patriotism prompted 2,000,000 Americans to plant gardens last year, according to estimates of the United States Department of Agriculture. Transportation facilities of the nation will be strained this year hauling munitions of war and foods for the Allies. The surplus food created by home gardens will help in the railroad problem. And the nation will eat less of the goods we must export—wheat, meat, fats and sugar. Every boy and girl that helps with the garden is helping win the war. Leaflets of instruction in garden making may be secured from the Department of Agriculture at Washington, upon request, without charge.

The Sheely Brothers Barn Wind Storm Loss

This barn, a new one, was one of the largest, the best built, the most up-to-date barn in Southern Pennsylvania, yet it did not withstand the wind storm, and the loss is thousands of dollars.

The loss is partly covered by cyclone insurance issued at Martin Winter's office.

The cost of this kind of insurance on a farm barn is $3.75 per $1000 insurance for three years (the rate on houses being lower).

The question therefore for every property owner is.

Does it pay to risk the loss of $1000 for three long years to save $3.75.

It requires less than five minutes to destroy a barn, and there are a good many five minute periods in three years.

New Styles
for Spring and Summer

To be out of fashion is to be out of favor, for it is the outward indication of self-respect to be well dressed.

The little word "style" has never meant so much to a woman as it will this Spring.

We have perhaps been over-cautious in making our selections of new models in Women's Suits, Coats, Dresses, Skirts, Waists &c., in order to uphold our reputation as the Store of Correct Style.

We are very particular about the quality of the materials and workmanship in our garments, but if that is considered a fault, we are glad to be known as fault finders.

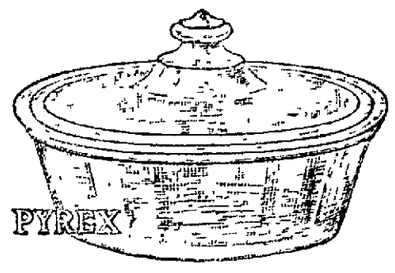

Unusual care has been given to our selections of apparel for Misses and Girls, our stocks embracing the newest thoughts from the best makers. Nothing that is not strickly in the latest fashion will be found here.

Our prices are exceptionally low, because we bought exceptionally large stocks, and therefore we are able to share with you the large savings that we made.

Even if you only care to look, we shall be glad to have you come to see our great stock.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
COMMITTEE ON THE PUBLIC LANDS
WASHINGTON, D. C.

March 14, 1918.

Hon. Andrew R. Brodbeck
House of Representatives

My dear Friend Brodbeck:

I greatly hope you may think it advisable to again make the race for Congress.

You have been such a help to the Administration and to all of us during these trying times that I hope you will be sure to come back. There will be many knotty problems for us to work out and your experience and zeal and trustworthy characteristics will be of great value here.

With great respect, I am

Very sincerely yours,
Scott Ferris
Chairman,
Democratic National Congressional Committee.

A. R. BRODBECK

Mr. Brodbeck's record as a Member of Congress is an open book, he has stood and voted for all the big problems that came before Congress and never ducked, he met all issues squarely.

As President Wilson believes, so does Mr. Brodbeck, that we should have peace, and must have peace, but the kind of peace that will mean that after this war is over, never again in our life times shall we have another.

The great big question now before the people of this country and of the world is: We are fighting for Democracy; for the liberties of the people, not only of this country, but of the world, we must win that fight or be placed in a state worse than slavery. Mr. Brodbeck's experience as a Member of Congress is particularly valuable to you at this time when the world is upside down when we never can tell what tomorrow may bring forth.

It's to your interest, to your children's interest, to the Country's interest, to the District's interest, not only to support Mr. Brodbeck, but explain to your friends why it is necessary to keep him in Congress as your Representative.

It dosen't pay to swap horses in mid stream.

WHY WOMEN GET THEIR WAY

Prominent Characteristic of the Sex, as Most Married Men Know, Is Their Determination.

The main difference between men and women is nowhere so marked as it is in the distinction between character and ability.

A man's ability is entirely separate from his character. A man may have genius and no character at all. He may have small ability and great character. In a man the two things appear to be entirely independent of one another.

But a woman's character is determined by her ability, and her ability is determined by her character. In reality, therefore, women are much more simple than men, although they do not appear to be so. Women are more complicated outwardly than men. They offer more superficial variety. But closer observation and association among them tend to make them more alike.

Men, on the other hand, grow more complicated as you come to know them better. This is because their abilities and characters being unrelated and the proportionate measure of each subject to variations, new combinations are constantly being presented. The various things which go to make up the motive power of woman, on the other hand, are more closely related. Women, therefore, concentrate more than men, although they do not seem to do so, the process being unconscious.

That explains why, if a woman wants a thing and a man doesn't want her to have it, she always gets it.

When a man wants a thing he plans to get it just as much as he can through the ordinary processes of his mind and will. When a woman wants a thing she makes no plan at all—but she gets it much more often than the man, because everything in her whole makeup, conscious and unconscious, is working for it.

If you want to see conservation of energy and the perfection of efficiency watch the working of that perfectly co-ordinated machine—a woman—getting ... she ... that ...—Life.

German Rubber Grove.

The capture and occupation of German East Africa by the British forces revealed the fact that the Germans had planted in this colony extensive tracts of rubber trees of the manihot species. The manihot rubber tree cannot be expected to increase its yield year after year, for the bark thickens after tapping and the tree ceases to yield after five years. But it thrives in hot, dry climates where other kinds cannot live. At the end of its productivity it is rooted out and replaced with young plants, which begin to yield in about two years. The species of rubber trees from which the great bulk of the world's rubber products are manufactured is the heves.

WHERE TARLETON IS BURIED

American Tourist Discovers Tomb of Dashing Officer Who Won Fame in Revolution.

What became of Major Tarleton after the Battle of Yorktown? Except for a very few people, says A. G. Bradley in the Nation, everyone in England has forgotten the very name of the young cavalry leader. But many persons in America must have wondered what became of the dashing soldier, and how it happened that in the long years of war that shook England and Europe his name never once appeared.

When Mr. Bradley, in a leisure hour, entered the fine old fourteenth century village church at Leintwardine, in Herefordshire, he did not think that the bare, unseated chapel promised much of interest; indeed, he was just turning away when in a far corner and partly concealed by ladders, buckets, planks and other articles necessary to the cleaning of the church, he caught sight of a lofty mural monument. The lettering on it ran as follows:

"Near this place are deposited the mortal remains of Sir Banastre Tarleton—Baronet General in the Army—Knight Grand Cross of the Order of the Bath, Governor of Berwick-on-Tweed, Colonel of the Gallant 8th Hussars. He represented his native town of Liverpool for seven Sessions and closed his distinguished career in this place Jan. 25, 1833."

In 1798 Tarleton was sent to Portugal, but was very soon recalled at his own request, and with that exception he never saw a shot fired after Yorktown or served anywhere abroad, although England was constantly fighting until Waterloo. He got promoted regularly, however, for he stood well at court and was a member of the prince of Wales' circle.

Tarleton belonged neither to the nobility nor to the landed gentry. He was the son of a Liverpool merchant, an unusual origin at that time for a dashing cavalry officer and the best horseman, according to good authority, in the British army. He had entered Oxford and had studied to become a barrister, but gave up classics and the law for soldiering and a commission at twenty-one years of age. He was a genius for the training of men and officers and for rapid and successful strokes.

On returning from America, however, he turned from soldiering to politics; he lost no time in entering the house of commons, and sat for his native city of Liverpool for 20 years. He became a major general in 1794, a lieutenant general in 1801, a full general in 1812, a baronet in 1815 and a G. C. B. in 1820. He also held the full coloneley of several cavalry regiments in succession and was for some years governor of Berwick. He apparently retired with his wife to Leintwardone for the last years of his life, lived there quietly and did not mix with the neighboring county families.

The seclusion of his gorgeous tomb, behind the cobwebs of a disused aisle, gives a final touch of mystery to the romance that early associations with Virginia have connected with Tarleton's name.—Youth's Companion.

ONE CENT CAPITAL

Penny Token Left by Will Brings Great and Unexpected Mineral Riches.

By MILDRED CAROLINE GOODRIDGE.

"And to my second nephew, Ronald Blair, as a reminder of his remarkable powers of memory, I leave the munificent sum of one penny. As he has seen fit to imitate my peculiarities in private, so may he copy my diligence, beginning life on one cent capital, which is more than I had at the start, and making his own way in the world."

The legatee in question listened to the slow, measured tones of Lawyer Jones like one in a dream. The reader of the last will and testament of Jepthah Blair, stern, practical man as he was, cast a mournful and sympathetic look at the young man. He liked Blair immensely, as did every one else in the town, unless it was Hugh Telford, seated also in the apartment. He smiled viciously and triumphantly. He was safe ashore while Ronald was floundering in dark waters. The "Blair Flat" was to be given to Telford, together with stocks and bonds valued at $40,000.

"I suppose you feel like cursing Uncle Jepthah," insinuated this precious young schemer and spendthrift.

Ronald was pale; disappointment and chagrin showed in his frank, sensative face. It hardened as he fixed his clear accusing eyes upon his sneering relative.

"No," he replied steadily. "If I was of the cursing sort you might come in for your share, for—I understand, now."

He left the lawyer's office as he spoke and a shade of anger and fear crossed the features of Telford. Ronald had to admit that he had expected a substantial legacy. He had every reason to anticipate it. It was cruel, after all his hopes and plans, and his heart sank like lead as he thought of Ruth Mason, his fiance.

Where should he go for comfort save to her? It was his privilege, his right, and half an hour later he was seated by her side on the porch of the Mason home.

"That's the Real Stuff!"

"It must be between you and me; all that I have to tell you, dear," he said to the pitying angel at his side. "Two years ago when Hugh and I were at college there was a character play. In it was a miserly old fellow, in dress and actions so fully a counterpart of Uncle Jepthah that many recognized it. This came to his ears, and that will was made. In reality Hugh had made the suggestion of the character to a chum, and rather gloated over 'showing up the old skinflint,' as he called his uncle. Then when the matter got public he became frightened and told uncle that I was the culprit."

"But you told me that later everything was explained to Mr. Blair," suggested Ruth.

"That is true, and uncle took me back into his good graces. He even called upon Hugh in my presence to verify his statement that he had destroyed the will made in anger. Then he died suddenly, intestate. Now this will appears. By some trickery I am convinced Hugh preserved it."

"But the law," began Ruth.

"I shall not appeal to it. Let Hugh go his selfish, cowardly way. As long as I have you what does the rest matter? We can wait a little while longer, can't we, dear?"

Ruth lifted her sweet, bonny face to his, ineffable tenderness and fidelity in its beautiful depths.

Ronald preserved the penny left to him. Most fellows would have cast it away with an anathema. Ronald knew his old uncle meant to do him justice. It was a rare old Scotch coin. He had the jeweler make a hole in it and suspended it from his watch chain.

The Blair Flat left to his cousin was a valuable property. Just before the death of Mr. Blair a deposit of a rare and valuable clay used in stereotyping and for electrical purposes had been discovered. It was known as ozocerite found elsewhere only in Austria and Utah. If things turned out as they promised, Hugh would some day become a wealthy man.

Adjoining the plat was a twenty-acre patch of sterile land which had been left to Ronald by his mother. It was of so little value that he made no attempt to have it cultivated, but secured a position as an accountant in a near city.

There reached him the first week the disquieting intelligence that Hugh was hanging around the Mason home a good deal. Then he received a letter from Ruth. It read: "Be patient for a year. I am going away and you must not write to me." There was no further word, and Ronald felt that everything he valued was fading away from him.

His business went well. The penny seemed to bring him good luck. In a street melee the bullets severely wounded two innocent bystanders, but one striking the penny glinted off and left him unscathed. Then the penny was observed by a loyal old Scotchman, leading to a friendship and a large amount of business.

It was just a year later when Ronald paid a visit to his home town. He learned that the wonderful ozocerite vein had run out. Hugh had pretty nearly dissipated all his ready money. He boasted, however, that he was engaged to Ruth and Ronald believed this after her inexplicable silence.

In later years he never forgot a sad and moody ramble ending at the barren twenty-acre lot. In going over it he stumbled, his watch chain caught on a bush, and the penny loosened loose and disappeared down a great open crack in the ground.

Ronald had no thought of losing a token which he sincerely treasured. He saw a man digging on an adjoining farm, went over to him and bargained for a careful excavation in quest of the lost memento.

It took some delicacy of treatment to manipulate the dry, crumbling dirt. At a depth of four feet, the bottom of the crack, the penny was produced.

"Hello!" suddenly exclaimed the workman as he scraped off his spade—"say, if this should be the real vein!"

"The what?" questioned Ronald vaguely.

"The vein of ozocerite. Look here—that's the real stuff," and he took up a handful of the scrapings from the spade.

It was "the real stuff;" that was proven within the ensuing two days. All the town was on fire over the rare good luck the old penny had brought to Ronald, for the real ozocerite vein had been tapped.

Ronald was standing on the land that promised so much in the yellow dusk of the fading day a few evenings later, when a familiar figure came up over the rise in the landscape.

His heart stood still as she approached. Then a bitter thought came into his mind—Ruth had heard of his good fortune.

"The year is over," she said brightly as she approached him. "Did they never tell you? It was Hugh Telford who laid his fortune at my feet, and my foolish father encouraged his suit. Finally it was agreed that I should take a year to decide, away from both of you. As if a year or a thousand could make me forget—you!"

And she lifted the old penny from the hand of her lover, the lucky penny of old Jepthah Blair, and kissed it.

TEACHING CHILDREN TO SWIM

Valuable Course Has Been Added to the Public Schools of the City of Pittsburgh.

A course in swimming has been added to the required studies in the public schools of Pittsburgh, and Dr. Watson L. Savage is quoted as saying that he will see to it that every child in the city is taught to swim. This is a step in public education that deserves the hearty approval of every parent and every seeker of the public welfare.

"To ride, to shoot and to speak the truth," was the ancient Persian ideal of education. Needless to say, this was for boys only; girls in this day fare better than when the maxim was made. They are taught to exercise as well as to develop their brains nowadays. Alike boys and girls ought to learn to swim, and the public should provide means of teaching that most valuable and pleasurable accomplishment.

Swimming is a splendid sport; it develops muscles rarely used in other sports and its usefulness is beyond question. Yet comparatively few persons learn to swim. There are sailors who have spent many years on the water but are unable to keep afloat when suddenly cast into the element with which they ought to be thoroughly acquainted. Drownings are far too numerous; knowledge of how to swim would greatly lessen their number. May the time soon come when every child who passes through the public schools will have learned how to swim.

Nelson's War Stores Found.

An interesting find is reported from Rome. Some fishermen declare that a shepherd has found near Cape Testa, the extreme northerly point of Sardiana, a large cave, containing an enormous quantity of powder and other war stores.

It is thought probable that the stores were placed in the cave by Nelson when he was watching the French fleet at Toulon in the operations which ended in the battle of Trafalgar. Nelson used Sardinia as his base of supplies, and it was while he was reffiting there that Villeneuve escaped from Toulon and got clear away to Martinique, whence he returned to European waters, where he was at last brought to bay. The Italian military authorities are investigating the find Cherokee Once Powerful.

The Cherokees are an important tribe of North American Indians. The name means upland field, the tribe being peculiarly upland. They may have so designated themselves to their first European visitors. They are probably the people known traditionally to the Delawares as Talligewi, a powerful body which once occupied the valleys of the Ohio and Allegheny rivers, and afterward was driven south by the Delawares and Iroquois. When first known to Europeans their center was in the southern Alleghenies, and they occupied the mountains of southern Virginia, North and South Carolina, Georgia, Alabama and Tennessee. Their chief settlements were on the head waters of the Savannah and Tennessee rivers, and were respectively called Elati Tsalaki, or Lower Cherokee, and Atali Tsalaki, or Upper Cherokee, speaking two different dialects. As the white settlers pressed upon them they retreated westward until by the treaty of 1835, they sold all their remaining country, and the main body removed to a tract assigned to them west of the Mississippi. A considerable number remained behind, and gradually concentrating in western North Carolina, are now known as the eastern band of Cherokees, numbering about 2,000.

Brute Traits in the Human.

The raising of the voice in anger is manifestly akin to the roar of the angry carnivora. Darwin has pointed out the connection between the human sneer and the snarl of the angry dog, and I have myself seen a refined woman in a transport of spite lift her upper lip and show her teeth in a manner absurdly like an enraged beast. But nothing shows more clearly the essential identity of the fighting instinct in man and the lower animal than the way in which a child, soon after it can toddle, will rush at the object of its passion and proceed to bite and scratch—that is, to use teeth and claws, as any of the carnivora might.—Exchange.

Welcome the Birds.

Are all the beautiful birdhouses that were made last winter now in place and occupied? Let us give a glad welcome to all the birds that can be induced to live near us. Not everyone realizes the benefit these little creatures confer. The work they do in preserving our crops and fruit from the ravages of insects needs to be told again and again. Besides this great use, the happiness they give us with their songs and their beauty is not to be told or measured. Many a heavy heart has been cheered and comforted by the robin's friendly "cheer up, dearie, cheer up" as he flits about a home. Robins love to be friendly, and there are other birds which love human society. Have you in your yard a dish of water for them to drink and bathe in? If not, put one there, and observe how gladly it is made use of.—Exchange.

First Principles.

"Do you think that new recruit will ever learn to be a soldier?" asked the commanding officer.

"Well, he's acquiring the foundations," responded the drill sergeant. "He had not been in camp a day before he was putting up a howl about the food."
